Sophia Salaman chooses the best merchandise and events worldwide

■ On 2 February Christie's South Kensington will sell the collection of Will Fisher, antique dealer and founder of reproduction company Jamb. The auction will consist of around 500 lots from Fisher's personal and business collections, including natural-history specimens, antique chimney pieces and furniture, as well as lighting and garden ornaments. 'The Collection of Will Fisher' will be sold at Christie's, 85 Old Brompton Rd, London SW7 (020 7389 2696; christies.com), on 2 Feb. The lots can be viewed at Jamb, 107a Pimlico Rd, London SW1 (020 7730 2122; jamblimited.com), 28 Jan-1 Feb.

■ From 28 January visitors to Chelsea Harbour will find 75 per cent off selected merchandise at participating showrooms. The sale applies to a great choice of fabrics, wall coverings, furniture, lighting, accessories and tiles from renowned international brands including Pierre Frey, Bella Figura and Interior Supply. Design Centre Chelsea Harbour, London SW10 (020 7225 9166; dcch.co.uk), 28 Jan-3 Feb (excluding Sunday).

■ The new Ochre showroom on Britton Street in east London showcases the company's collection of modern lighting, furniture, accessories and bespoke services. The space has an industrial feel that brings out the glamour and sculptural quality of the designs. Visitors will therefore see to full effect the exquisite craftsmanship that goes into each product, as well as the use of unusual materials and original forms. Ochre, 46-47 Britton St, London EC1 (020 7096 7372; ochre.net).

■ French company Philippe Hurel has a dedicated team of designers, cabinetmakers and craftsmen to create the finest furniture combining traditional and modern techniques. It also runs a bespoke service enabling clients to have pieces tailor-made to their exact requirements and down to the finest detail. Philippe Hurel's products have been used by numerous high-end hotels such as The Connaught and Brown's in London, and the company was commissioned by Louis Vuitton to manufacture its 'Cigare' cabinet. Philippe Hurel, 122 Fulham Rd, London SW3 (020 7373 1133; philippe-hurel.com).

■ Natuzzi has opened an exclusive new Paola Navone studio in its north London store. Located on the upper mezzanine, the space features a range of furnishings and accessories specially designed by Paola for the Italian brand. The new collection, entitled 'Fundamentali', includes classic pieces such as armchairs, sofas, lamps, sideboards, ottomans, coffee tables and side tables, all in bold fabrics. Natuzzi, Unit 2-3, The Pulse, 333-339 Finchley Rd, London NW3 (0845 004 0903; natuzzi.co.uk).

■ Known for providing the best night's sleep, Hästens has collaborated with Swiss linen manufacturer Christian Fischbacher on a new collection of bedding, 'Satin Pure'. Christian Fischbacher uses cotton with a high staple length to guarantee softness and durability, as well as creating a linen which is lightweight and woven. The material is then treated, dyed and washed to maintain its colour and gloss for up to 300 washes. Ring 00 46 221 27400, or visit hastens.com.

■ Recognised as one of the foremost textile designers of her generation, Helen Yardley has her work in the collections of the V&A, the British Academy and the House of Commons. Her studio produces rugs, carpets and wall hangings for an international client base, as well as working with eminent architects and interior designers. The rugs are hand knotted, with hand-tufted designs also available. Each wall hanging is hand-made, and can be created to commission. Helen Yardley Studio, A-Z Studios, 3-5 Hardwidge St, London SE1 (020 7403 7114; helenyardley.com).

■ Nestled among 12 acres of landscaped gardens with views overlooking Mounts Bay and the Atlantic ocean, Cornwall's Polurrian Bay Hotel has recently completed a major refurbishment. The quintessential family seaside hotel, it has a cosy and intimate atmosphere, as well as locally sourced food and a variety of children's facilities. The hotel has its own beach and numerous leisure facilities such as cliff-top tennis courts, two swimming pools – one outdoor and one indoor – as well as a sports field.
